Neil

Hello and welcome to Real Easy English from BBC Learning English. I'm Neil.

Beth

And I'm Beth. In this podcast, we have a real conversation in easy English to help you learn.

Neil

You can find the vocabulary from this episode and more to help you with your English at bbclearningenglish.com.

Beth

Hi, Neil. How're things?

Neil

I'm very well, thank you, Beth. How about you?

Beth

I'm very good, thank you. Now, in today's episode, we are going to talk all about us!

Neil

Yes, that's right. We'll help you learn to talk about yourself, your feelings, and your personality.

Beth

OK. So, Neil, what do we mean by personality?

Neil

Well, we use the word personality to talk about the type of person we are. So how we behave, how we feel, how we think. For example, we can have a warm personality or a friendly personality.

Beth

OK. So, Neil, how would you describe yourself? What kind of personality do you have?

Neil

Ah that's difficult Beth! I think I'm quite calm, laid back, maybe. I don't get too upset or angry very easily. How about you, Beth? What's your personality?

Beth

I think that when I first meet people, I'm quite shy. I'm a bit quiet, and I don't say much, and maybe feel a bit nervous. But as soon as I get to know somebody, I am much more confident and then I'm very chatty and talkative. So then I do talk a lot.

Neil

OK, Beth. So, can you tell me what your interests are? What you like doing?

Beth

Well, I really like reading. I read quite a lot and I listen to audio books as well. I find lots of different topics interesting, and I also love going to the theatre. I find that really exciting. What about you?

Neil

I really like spending time with friends, chatting, having a laugh. And I really like live music, too.

Beth

So, Neil, you said you like going to watch live music. Why do you enjoy that?

Neil

Yes, I get really excited to see a new band that I like, that I've heard and I haven't seen before, and I think it's also really exciting to hear live music because it exists just then, that moment, and it's never repeated.

Beth

Yeah, that's kind of why I love going to the theatre. It's special because it's just one performance. Anything could happen, and it's really exciting to just be there in the moment.

Now, when you're with your friends, I know that you laugh quite a lot. Would you say that you have a good sense of humour?

Neil

Maybe, yes. I do, I like laughing, and I think I like to see the funny side of things in the world.

Beth

So, usually, everybody has a sense of humour. It just means the kind of things that you find funny.

Neil

Yeah, and Beth, I remember once you told me you and your friend have a secret language.

Beth

We do. It's very silly. She made it up when she was a child, and she taught me it. So, sometimes we have secret conversations, and it's very silly, and we find it very funny. I would say I have a silly sense of humour.

Neil

Well, Beth, I've learned a lot about you today. Shall we have a look at the vocabulary we used during our conversation?

Beth

Yes. So, we had personality. That is the type of person you are.

Neil

We've had sense of humour, the types of things that make you laugh.

Beth

And throughout the conversation, we have used adjectives that end in -ed and -ing. For example, Neil, you are excited to watch live music because you find the live music exciting.

We use adjectives that end with -ed like excited and interested when we mean our feelings. You are interested in something.

And we use adjectives that end in -ing to talk about the thing that gives you that feeling. For example, you find live music exciting. And I find reading books interesting.
